The survivors who were taken to hospitals on their arrival here on the Carpathia are now practically all vecovered, and many of them have left for their homes. Relief societies have gathered funds aggregating over o quarter of a million dollars and the reflef committees have been swamped with clothing. Not only that, but countless letters were received, all offering assistance of every surt. Some offered the use of their rooms and others tendered their services after their daily work was done.

How many boats obeyed the captain's orders to return Mr. Daly was unablo to tell.

FIREMAN'S STORY.

John Thompson, a ftremun of the Tilunic, suffering with a broken arm at St. Vincent's Hospital, may be an Important witness at the Senatorial investigation into the wreck at Washington. Thompson comes from Livenpool and he asserts that the Titante wus out "to beat all records on maiden trips."

"From Queenstown out," Thompson is quoted as saying, "all the firemen had been talking of the orders we find to fire her up as hard as we pos sibly could. We were to make quick a passage as possible, the order ran, and we were to beat all records on our maiden trip. I heard that these orders came from the engineering department, but, bless you, we men didn't have time to talk about where those orders came from.

Manager of Pirates Insists Men to Keep in Good Form.

Pittsburgh, April 22.-Manager Clarke of the Pirates is a great sticker for form, and insists that his men lead very model lives, at least during training season. He has just issued a table of ten commandments for the team which are all don'ts. Here they

Ite is expected to arrive in Hartford today or Saturday, when work will be commenced The gentleman who arrived Wednesday was of the opinion after visiting the well that it would be a success in every way. He said that he had seen 200 burreis a day well that was in only about seven feet of oil sand. The well here is In twenty-one feet of oil sand, and this is a splendid indication.

A BOOK THAT HAS NO STOPPING PLACES!

Least You Won't Stop Until You Have Read it From Cover to Cover

VULTURE'S CLAW" BY REV. C. F. WIMBERLY, OF MADISONVILLE, KY.

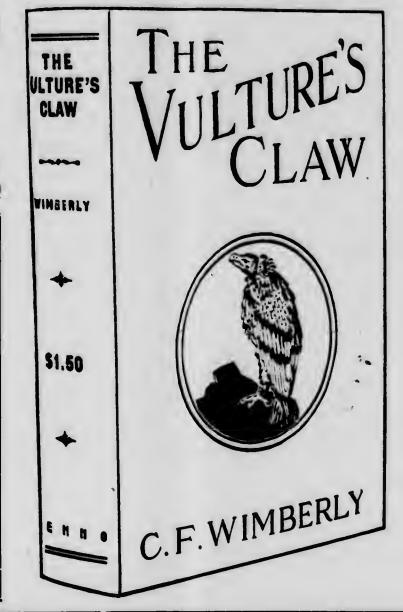

'The Vulture's Claw' is an absorbingly interesting story, with a deep religious moral. The story takes its name from a miserly, grasping hypocrite whose left hand is deformed into the shape of a claw and his character is so much like a vulture that the title of the book is peculiarly apt. Mr. Wimberly introduces more than a dozen interesting characters and a multiplicity of situations which he handles with a master hand. His descriptive work is nothing short of genius. Most of the action takes place in the remote Ozark mountains and much of it hangs upon the coming into the mountains of a school mar'm who infuses new life and ambition into the community; and in coming of a Methodist minister with whose beautiful character the reader readily falls in love. "The Vulture's Claw" is a remarkable story of hardship depicting the unfavorable environments of remote mountain sections; of the influence of one or two strong personalities upon the lives of many people, and through every page runs a double remance which absorbs the interest of the reader.

ATTRACTIVE FOR YOUR SON OR DAUGHTER.

It's a book of fiction-of intense interest, of everyday characters, and a plot that makes the hair raise only to prepare you for the happy ending. Christian homes will appreciate this story, because of the deeply religious moral so adroitly and so strongly in-

Read what others say about it WM. JENNINGS BRYAN SAYS:

Rev. C. F. Wimberly, Madisonville, Ky.- My Dear Mr. Wimberly: I have read 'The Vulture's Claw;' it is a splendid story. The book should find a place in Sunday school libraries and among the books for young people. You have succeeded admirably in combining moral lessons with an interesting narrative. 1 congratulate you. Yours truly,

"W. J. BRYAN"

AN UPLIFTING FORCE.

A remarkable book; it has that strange infinable charm and power which held us to the very last page. It shows the battles among the hard environments, and the victories that may be won. It will be an uplifting force in every life which only eternity can measure.-St. Louis Christian Advocate.

IT INSPIRES CONFIDENCE.

Before the eyes of the reader, in clearest outline, is the destructive power of the hypocrite, and the constructive power of the humble pious life. It inspires confidence to splendid success. It is clearly seen that Mr. Wimberly is acquainted with rural life in the South.—United Presbyterian.

SHOULD BE READ.

I consider it one of the best books of fiction I have ever read. It is the kind of fiction that should be read. There is nothing in it but what is elevating and helpful. The plot is well gotten up and there is enough comedy and tragedy both in it to interest any lover of fiction. I thought so much of it that I made a public announcement of the book in the chapel, and urged every student to get it and read it .- M. A. Beeson, Pres. Meridian Male College.

CHAPTER XIX.

LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Illustrations by Ellaworth Yound

The wanderer had come upon Mrs. Prynne but once since he had boarded the Panjnab. That morning, himself early astir because of his vague misgivings, he had discovered her on the hurricane deek of the liner; an inconspicuous, slight figure in the shadrail and gazing with (he faneled) troubled eyes, out and across tho waste below ismalia. Though she must have been conscious of nearing footsteps, she had not stirred, and he had passed on, appeared either at breakfast or lunchto surmise that she did not court obso fair.

He told himself that she wore an air of watchfuiness, of vague expectancy, as though she, like himself, feared some unioward mishap; that she had the manaer of one definitely apprehensive, constantly on guard against some unforeseen peril.

Now, he asked himself, what could it be? What threatened her? And

He dimly promised himself the pleasure of her acquaintance, relying in the rapid latimacy that springs up hetween strangers on a long voyage. with a still more indefinite intention of putting himself at her service ia any cause that she might be pleased to name, provisionally: sho must not laterfere with his plans for reaching Rangoon "in ninety days."

That night he was hoping to find the lady at dinaer; but though the ship's company was small, he failed to see her in the saloon, at either the captain's, the chief officer's or the doctor's table; nor, so far as he could determine, was she taking the air on deck. Was it possible, thea, that he had been right, that she had a reason equally as compelling as his own for secluding herself? Or, was it simply (and infinitely more probably) that Mrs. Prynne was indisposed, an enervated victim of excessive heat?

The latter conjecture proved apparently the right one, Mrs. Prynne failing to appear during the two following days, while the Panjnsb was rocking down the Red Sea channel; (he had little else to occupy his mind, for a duller voyage he, had never known) to give Danny permission to pursue his inquiries: with an injunction, however, prohibiting too lavish an expenditure of the boy's wealth of affection. Whereupon Danny returned with the information that the mistress of Cecile, the maid, was suffering from heat exhaustion.

This was entirely reasonable. O'Rourke accepted the demolition of his airy castles of Romance, laughed at himself, in part was successful in putting the woman out of mind; doubtless, in time, he would have done so altogether, had not the lady chosen to take the air the night that the Psnjnab negotiated the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. For on that same night, O'Rourke, himself wakeful, was minded to sit up and watch the lights of Perim island heave into view.

O'Rourke, in a deck-chair on the starboard side, well cloaked in the shadow of the 'deck above, watched the other passengers, one by one, quiet their chatter, yawn, stretch and slip below to stuffy staterooms.

He suffered a dreamy eye to rove where it would, greedy of the night's superb illusion.

Four bells-two o'clock-chimed upon his consciousness like a physical shock. He verified the hour by his watch and, reluctantly enough, agreed that it was time he got himself to He half rose from his chair, then sank back with an inaudible catch of his breath. Without warning the apparition of a white-clad woman had invaded the promenade deck. For an instant he hardly credited his eyes, then, with a nod of recognition, he identified Mrs. Prynne.

Unquestionably unconscious of his presence in the shadow, she fell to pacing to and fro. Now and again, she stopped, and with chin oradled in her small hands, elbows on the rail, watched the approaching cliffs of Arabia; then, with perhaps a sigh, re-turned to her untimely constitutional. Partly because he had no wish to startle her, partly because he was glad to watch unobserved (he had a rare eye for beauty, the O'Rourke), rare eye for beauty, the O'Rourke), the wanderer sat on without moving, stirred only by active ourlosity. The strangeness of her appearance upon deck at such an hour fascinated his imagination no less than her person held his eye. He gave himself over to vain and profitiess speculation.

Why, he woodered, should she keep to her cabin the greater part of the evening, only to take the air when sone might be supposed to oursers

Why, if not to escape such observa tion? Then, he told himself, he must se right in his supposition that she and something to fear, someone to avoid. What or whom? What was it all, what the mystery that, as he watched her, seemed to grow, to cling about her like some formless, impalpable garment?

Events conspired to weave the man into the warp and woof of her affairs; more quickly than he could grasp the reason for his sudden action, he found himself a-foot and dashing aft at top speed. But an instant gone Mrs Prynne had passed him, unmolested and wrapped in her splendid isolation; and then from the after part of the deck he had heard a slight and guarded cry of distress, and a small cuffling sound.

In two breaths he was by her side and found her struggling desperately in the arms of a lascar-a deck-hand on the steamer.

At first the strangeness of the business so amazed O'Rourke that he paused and held his band, briefly rooted in action. For although it was apparent that she had been caught off her guard, wholly unprepared against assault, and while she struggled flerceow of a life-boat, leaning upon the ly to break the lasenr's hold, the woman still uttered no cry. A single scream would have brought her aid; yet she held her tongue.

The two, the woman's slight, white figure and the lascar's gaunt and sinewy one, strained and fought, swaying gaining but a fugitive glimpse of a silently in the shadows, tensely, with profile sweetly serious; nor had sho the effect of a fragment of some disordered nightmare. But then, as the eon. A circumstance which led him lascar scemed about to overpower his victim, O'Rowke, electrified, sprang servation: an idiosyaerasy which upon the man's back. With one strong seemed passing strange in a woman arm deftly he embraced the fellow, an elbow beneath his chin forcing his head up and back. With the other hand O'Rourke none too gently toro away an arm encireliag the woman. Then wrenehing the two apart, he sent a knee crashing iato the small of the lascar's back, all but breaking him in two, and so flung him sprawling iato the seuppers.

Without a word the man slid upon his shoulders a full half-dozen feet, while O'llourke had a momentary glimpse of his face in the mooalight -dark-skinned and sinister of expression with its white, glarlag eyehalis. Thea, in one bound, he was on his feet again and springing lithely back to the attack: and as he came on a jagged gleam of moonlight ran like lightaing down the sinuous and formidable length of a kris, most deadly of knives.

O'Rourke fell back a pace or two. His own hands were empty; he had nothing but naked fists and high courage to pit against the lascar and his kris. Keenly alert, ho threw himself into a pose of defence.

But O'Rourke' had forgotton the woman; it was enough that he had made possible her escape, and he had no thought other than she had fled. It was, therefore, with as much surprise as relief that he caught the glimmer of her white figure as she thrust herself before him and saw the lascar bring up in the middle of a leap, his nose not an inch from the muzzle of an army Webley of respect-compelling Simultaneously, he heard her voice, lear and incisive Drop that knife!"

The kris shivered upon the deck. "Faith!" murmured the Irishman, and what manner of woman is this,

"Faith, Mrs. Prynne-!" "And I thank you a second time, very heartily!" She offered him her hand, and smiled bewitchingly.

"'Tis embarrassing me ye are," he protested. "Faith, to be thanked twice for so slight a service! I can only wish that I might do more-"

"It is possible," she said, apparently not in the least displeased by his presumptiou- "It is possible that I may take you at your word, Coloael O'Rourke,'

In her eyes, intent upon his, he fancied that he recognized an amused flicker, with, perhaps, a trace of deeper emotion: the kindling interest of a woman in a strong man, with whose signals he was not unfamiliar. Pride and his conceit stirred in his breast.

"'Twould be the delight of me life," he told her in an ecstasy.

"Don't be too sure, I warn you colonel." Her manner was now arch, her smile entirely charming. "It might be no light service i should require of

"Ye couldn't ask one too heavy. . . But 'tis weary ye are, Mrs. Prynne?" he inquired, solicitous.

"Very." There was in fact an definite modulation of weariness in her voice. "I'm only a woman," she said faintly, with a little gesture of deprecation; "and my ways are hedged about with grave perils-" "Tis the O'Rourke would gladly brave them all for ye, madam," he declared gallantly. "Command me-what ye will." She lifted her gaze to his, coloring divinely there in the moon-glamor. He looked into her curiously bewitching eyes and saw there an appeal and a strange little tender smile. Her head was so near his shoulder that he was aware of the vague, alluring perfume of her hair. Her scarlet lips parted And he became suddenly aware that it behooved him to hold himself well in hand. It were an easy mat ter to imagine himself swept off his feet, into a whirl of infatuation, with a little encouragement. And he was not unsophisticated enough to fail to see that encouragement would not be lacking if he chose to recognize it. "Faith," he told himself, "I'm thinking 'twould be wiser for me to take to me heels and run before . . .

He was spared the ignominious necessity of flight. In two breaths they showed two very different pictures. Now they stood alone on the dead white deck, alone with the night, the sea, the stars, the slience and the moonlight: O'Rourke a bit dismayed and wary, but as curious as any man in such a case; the woman apparently yielding to a sudden fascination for, him, swaying a little toward him as if inviting the refuge of his arms.

And now she started away, clutching at her heart, with a little choking cry of aisrm; while benesth them the vessel was still quivering with a harsh yet deadened detonation like an explosion, together with a grinding crash and shrick of riven steel somewhere deep in the hold.

Inexpressibly dismayed, they stared with wide and questioning eyes at one another, through a long minute filled with an indescribable uproar: a succession of shocks and thumps in the interior of the vessel gradually diminishing in severity while, in a pandemonium of clamorous voices, the liner, like a stricken thing, hesitated in its southward surge, then slowly limped into a dead halt on the face of the waters. , , .

Making the Soil Fertile.

One of the primary things to be considered in relation to soil fertility is the texture of the soil, or its physical condition . Almost all solis contain na yields for many years in succession, yet the physical state of the soil is such that very little of the plant food is avail able, or in a condition such that it can be dissolved by soil water and abnorbed by the roots of growing plants,

Why Women Are Not RICH.

Man is a millional te many times over in the possession of blood cells. Woman is not quite so rich, for scientists have proven that the normal man has five million—the woman only four and a half million to a cubic millimetre of blood.

Dr. R. V. Pierce found years ago that a glyceric extract of golden seal and Oregon grape roots, queen's root and bloodroot with black cherrybark, would help the assimilation of the food in the stomack, correct liver ills and in Nature's own way increase the red blood corpuscles. This medicine he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By assimilation

Nervousness is only "the cry of the starved nerves for food," and when the nerves are fed on rich red blood the person looses those irritable feelings, sleeps well at night and is refreshed in the morning. ings, sleeps well at night and is retreshed in the morning.

"I was attacked with a severe nervous disease, which was caused by a disordered stomach and liver," writes Mr. Jas. D. Lavelly, of Washburn, Tenn., Route 2, Eox Sh. "All my friends thought I would die and the best physicians gave me up. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and derived much benefit from same. My case had run so long, it had become so chronic that nothing would effect a permanent cure, but Ir. Pierce's medicine has done much for me and I highly recomment it. I heartily advise its use as a spring tonic, and further advise niling people to take Dr. Pierce's medicines before their discases have run so long that there is no chance to be cured.

Charley had his great guns ing the brushes for this trait. He had out for the droves of slop-fed stillbeds near a plant, while it is in operarise with a great guffoo and make a as possible, for sure as a lot of wild dark the moon shiner goes thundering out the other aids on short notice, for does not require a college professor to convince him there is trouble of they came from, else they will remain quiet until day break, and unless you go in at night with the hogs you will miss seeing the thoon shiner go out Charley had not told the men of his ran into a idg bunch of sleeping swine and started them on the run, he fel in behind like a veteran, and was soon well up in the bunch, like he had whigs in place of feet, and when the plas lilt the beaten trail and headed down the west slope of the mountain, and neck with Charley and the porkdrove and go off like the wind. You can well imagine the racket this procession of wild hogs and revenue men of Falt Top Mountain. As usual, this plant was built up against the west to one side and down by the end of it to the door, which was onthef ront eut corners and head in to avoid going on over the plant and into the front yard So when the drove cut corners for the low land Charley shot straight ahead and came down slap dab in the middle of the still house roof with his 150 nounds of bone and boots. and the loose boards parted before this human ball like so much paper, and one of the moon shiners told me after "run" never entered his head he was so astonished. The four men present never heard the racket till it was nearly all over and never connected It with a red rald when Charley came crashing through the old board roof, but first deemed it a mad rush by some wild stoer with an attack of holler horn, and sald he stood there looking down at Charley, who was all doubled up on the dirt floor and bent, half alive until he looked up to see the rost of our bunch pointing their Winchesters in at the daar and commanded "hands up." Then It drawed on him, he sald, that the mangled heap on the floor at his feet was in some way a part of this round-up gang, and by some means, had come through the roof, but for why he could not guess at had more trouble in collecting up Charley with his arsenal and piloting them back twenty-six mlles to town and to some doctor than they did in transporting the four poor fellows, who were so easily coralled, after being eaught in the very act. This was Charley's first and last raid. He soon drifted back to Washington, and the last I heard of him he was a government clerk of some sort and keeping close under the electric glare of Pennsylvania avenue, so he could steer clear of the many plt falls encountered in his delirlous moments and, dreaming of times when he broke the speed

Buy An IHC Spreader From Your Local Dealer

EYOND doubt a good manure spreader is a necessity on every farm. Every live farmer has asked himself-"Which spreader is best?"
"Why is it best?" and, "Where can I buy that spreader?"

The answer to these questions is—buy an I HC spreader from your local dealer.

The fertility of your soil depends as much on proper distribution as on the manure itself. Settle the manure spreader question once for all. See the local dealer and buy an

IHC Manure Spreader Kemp 20th Century Corn King or Cloverleaf

The IHC local dealer will show you good spreader construction and explain why it is good. When you buy your spreader from him, he will set it up for you, show you how to adjust it, start you off right, and be right there all the time to take care of any future needs.

Study fertility; learn why a good spreader is good. Buy an IHC spreader from your local dealer—that is the beginning of the most profitable farming.

WE WILL GIVE AWAY

6 EVER BLOOMING ROSE BUSHES FREI

We have six well rooted, everblooming rose plants to give away to every woman who reads this advertisement. Owing to the excessive moisture in the ground this spring, these plants will, with ordinary care, grow rapidly and begin to bloom early this summer.

The Varieties Offered.

The varieties are especially selected to please the grower and to insure permanent and satisfactory growtli. They consist of:

ETOILE DE FRANCE. A clean, rich velvety crimson bloomer, a giant in hardiness and sturdiness. The growth is luxuriant and lusty with great masses of deep colored roses blooming all summer.

MY MARYLAND. One of the most exquisite of all pink roses. Its flowers have an indescribable charm, being composed of thick, heavy petals unsurpassed in elegance of form and deepening in shade as the flower expands-something that can be said of very few pink roses. Its fragrance is delightful and lasting.

KAISER IN AUGUSTA VICTORIA. A most beautiful creamy white rose. It is hardy, vigorous and practically free from disease. The flowers are double and grandly set on long, stiff stems and appear continuously all summer. STOILE DE LYON. Absolutely the most perfect yellow rose in the market to-day. It blooms in profusion, sending forth a deep golden yellow bloom that is profuse and lasting with an exquisite fragrance. CLOTHILDE SOUPERT. During the hottest month of summer, when other plants show a withered sickly condition, this rose continues to produce its beautiful white, pink tinted flowers, which always appear fresh and sweet. CRIMSON RAMBLER. One of the most charming roses roses ever offered to the trade. This is the first crimson rambler that can really and truthfully be called an "ever bloomer." The flowers are a deep brilliant crimson, measuring from one to two inches in diameter and produced in great clusters. Nothing like it has ever been offered before.

Don't let this opportunity slip.

Send us $1.25, within the next ten days and we will extend your subscription to The Hartford Republican for one year, and the Farmer and Stockman one year. For your promptness we will send you charges prepaid, the six rose plants advertised above. Address all orders to
